~ Time takes all but memories... ~
~ the Elizabethan '71 ~ '72 ~

A thousand passings in the halls but never have I seen you At once there was a simple smile then forgotten in a while.

As forgotten as the hours we spent leaning over long smooth tables explaining notes and studying. And talking of the times we spent just walking

Time has taken leave and in it's wake drones the sound of far away absence

But I will not forget a precious part of me as yet.

The silver music of a once-existing laugh still rings occasionally.

A dead leaf quietly floats to the ground
And a gay step turns it to dust.

In lavender on black it brushed my thou sensuous in touch it whispered

Principal

Mr. W. P. Sharek

Yearbooks generally focus more attention on the graduating class than on any other group in a school. The graduates, because of seniority, have, in their final year, set the tone of the school and through their activities have influenced a large number of their colleagues and staff. With the end of the school year, however, they will find themselves facing the all important question of: Where do we go from here?

For a period of twelve or thirteen years from elementary grades through to the end of secondary school many of the required decisions for these young people were made either by the parents or the community. At the end of the high school career, each individual will be expected to rely less and less on external agencies to glean the relevant data, arrange it into a sequence or system and make decisions based on his findings. If high school education has in any way facilitated decision making then, to a degree, the objectives of education have been attained.

Each graduate has, of course, his own objectives. If he finds himself at a crossroad it is now his responsibility to choose the route which will lead to the desired goal. Having made the choice a great amount of effort and determination will be required to arrive at the chosen destination.

The staff, with which you, the graduating class, have been associated at Queen Elizabeth Composite High School extends to each graduate its warmest wishes and hopes that your dreams and expectations become realities. In the meantime, whenever you have a few spare moments free from everyday worries and duties drop in and say "Hello". Will you?

Good luck to you all!

CITY FINALS

Seven.
Lined up.
Moving
On your mark.
Muscles tense Eager,
Get set.
Muscles ready
Go!
Surge forward Get in.
Inside lane.
Stay there.
Don't rush.
First corner.
Sixth place.
Stay there.
That's it.
Next corner.
Feet pounding.
On. . .
Fourth corner.
Once around Go again,
Move up.
Boxed in.
Move.
Can't.
There's a hole.
Go!
One corner left.
Pull up, ahead.
Faster.
Fifth.
Fourth.
Go!
Third!
Second!
Go!
Go!
First!!
Keep it.
Go!
Don't look back!
Go!
He's gaining!
Go! Go! Go!
Together!
GO! ROD! GO!
He's past!
Go-o-oh

Second.

If only
I'd been two feet

Ahead.

"I"

I am like a grain of sand on a vast beach trying to be noticed but my cries are unheard above the roar of the waves.
Should I surrender and settle back into the sand and stay unnoticed and let my life flow out with the tide or should I awaken the others around me.
We could stand together and fight the great force before us.
There will be those that will crawl behind, seeking shelter from the surge but unless we unite firmly together
we will sift back where we will be sucked into the fathomless deep.

MAN HANGING ALONE

8:03 A. M. , saturday morning
A weak aGo 2day
i found my free dumb being liberated from the chains of childhood of fathers handcuffs and mothers apron strings
and baby brothers' white and blue PLASTIC LAMINATED TOY RATTLE that didn't rattle.
i was thrust into the world of the:
space age, psychedelic candy bar wrapper,
no lead, low lead, and High octane gasoline, cars that go 160 m. p. h. in a 60 mile zone, color television, tide with XKE (the phosphates might kill you, BUT you will have the CLEANEST wash in town).
saran wrap, and last but definitely not least,
the tooth-paste with Sex-Appeal.
and so i trod off to school in the morning and the sun isn't shining and all of the ***** birds have flown south (via Air Canada) to the Carribean for the Winter Months while i bust my ass trying to put up with all those dumb bastards who are in a state of perpetual motion, trying to catch their tails. and they persecute me because i'm a "crazy, longhaired, dirty, Hippy, Weirdo, Freak!"
and so as the sun sinks slowly in the south my shadow resembles a scarecrow as i hang crucified on Electric Fence

WHITE CONCRETE

Buses are slow
I discover myself standing.

Hands stuffed in a green forest at least it is warm in there.

I finger my ticket glance about people I find are equal to the cold air.

An old man limps spits on the concrete mothers lead their young like a train around the track

I seek refuge in my coat turning to face those big glass doors pleading for some warmth in the light flooding through them

Now back again the famed bus wheezes to a stop a few escape
I climb on.

ME, MYSELF AND I

I stood alone in the empty muck

Questioning why

I was there . . .

So small and alone.

Then I heard some small noise

Someone so alone

Crying softly . . .

So small
and alone.

He sprang to his feet when I saw him
So scared

BY IMPULSE

I shot him . . .

And as he fell . . .

I saw his eyes were questioning

And then . . .

I really was . . .

alone.

SILENCE

Amongst hundreds of people
I see nothing
Amidst crowded city streets
I listen,
And hear naught but Silence.

Like a netted fish
Helplessly entangled
I flounder and touch, but Am drowned
By the humilities of Silence.

When cruel words are thrown
At the weak,
And peace
No longer exists
What is to be heard, but Silence?

TOUCH THE SKY

- Kinman Quon
First prize: Art

See the birds Getting smaller Disappear; coming near Closer . . . closer Touch the sky

Birds of life Cry; fly away
Wrapped in the sky, they cry
I feel their tears
Touch the earth

Reach the sky
Forever fool;
Something I can't have - Sing
For me. Look sky
Touch my soul

I look up
My eyes see and I hear;
Blackened sky letting go;
Birds of life cry, come down

A gentle thump of reality -
A bird hit the deceiving window.

- Debra Purych
Honourable Mention: Poetry

The Knight of the Burning Pestle

SPECTRUM

Rainbowed spirits
Ran freely across the stark wall,
Basking in the glint of the light,
Till the jealous evening
Compelled them to return,
To their crystal prison.

Karen Hazlett

SONNET

If I explored the meadows of your mind
In thoughts as soft as grass upon a hill,
I wonder what small treasures I would find
And would I then know if you loved me still.
Would I find there a small blossom of love
Or would the last by now be dead and old
Would songs of love burst forth from birds above
Or would they mourn the day that love grew cold
But now you reach across and touch my hand
You brush the single teardrop from my face
You laugh, I smile, we run across the sand
Across the land, into the sea we race
I know now that your love for me is true
I see it has not changed . . . but only . . . grew.
